

It should be noted that even though this work was begun with an unselected version of M14, the above estimates would be biased in the later generation data, if "Within line" variability existed in our strain of M14, because of an unavoidable and progressive tendency to select for the less restoring substrains, if they existed.